School Song

ALMA MATER

Oh Alma Mater, teacher, friend,
Our staunch supporter to the end,
Now here we sing with jubilee
Some fervent praises owed to thee.

Thy praises for the lessons taught,
For wisdom from our folly wrought.
For earnest aid in every need
And hearty help towards better deed.

For teaching us to win and lose,
And in them both a grace infuse,
So for these things we sing to thee
Our praises with great jubilee.

BARBARA BIRKHOFF

Prologue

Herein are published the names and photographs of the instructors and pupils of the Class of 1924 in the Cambridge High and Latin School in the hope that the book containing them may remain a monument in later life to that period of four years during which they spent together the chief and most valuable part of their youth in the pursuit of friendship as well as learning.

Dedication

Our Friend, rather than our Master, under whom, but never against whom we have struggled, and whose hand has been always far more eager to help than to punish, we the Class of 1924 loyally dedicate
our Year Book

to

Thomas Long Bramhall

THOMAS LONG BRAMHALL

To

Miss Lillian R. Hartigan

the

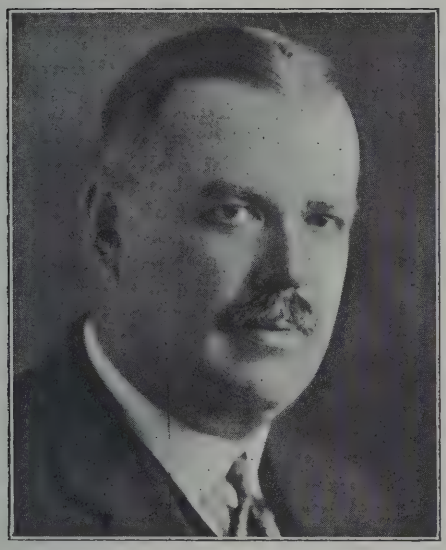
Class of 1924

extends its affectionate gratitude for wise counsel, unfailing sympathy, and warm friendship. She has given to us individually and collectively such guidance, example, encouragement, and help in our school lives that our best effort and achievement hereafter can alone repay our debt to her.

MISS LILLIAN R. HARTIGAN

Heads of Departments

Lack of Funds! thou spectre of gloom. Thine is the fault, and no one else's that we are deprived of that which lies nearest our hearts. Oh, that we could in future years gaze on the benign faces of all our instructors of high school days! Alas! because of thee, it is impossible. Therefore we shall regard with intensified affection those guiding hands under whose skill the departments so successfully run their course.



THOMAS LONG BRAMHALL
Mathematics

For him the teacher's chair
became a throne.
With fond affection memory
loves to dwell
On the old days, where his example made
A pastime of the toil of tongue and pen.

ANNA P. BUTLER
English

Mindful not of herself,
But bearing the burdens of others.

GEORGE H. CAIN
Commercial

"It is not what he has, nor even what he does which directly expresses the work of a man, but what he is."

CECIL T. DERRY
Latin

"How shall we rank thee on glory's page,
Thou were more than soldier, and just less than sage?"

TIMOTHY F. DOWNEY
Science

"Thou art e'en as just a man,
As e'er my conversation cop'd
with all."

MISS MARY C. HARDY
German

"That what she will, she does
And so does much."

MISS LILLIAN R. HARTIGAN
Oral English

"Dowered with celestial gifts,
Skilled in every art
That enobles and uplifts
And delights the heart."

MISS LILLIAN C. ROGERS
French and German

"A woman in whom there lies
A gracious, deep perfected calm."

IN MEMORIAM

MISS CAROLINE CLOSE

In 1874, Miss Caroline Close was appointed a teacher in the Cambridge schools. The last twelve years of her life she was the head of the English department in the High and Latin School.

In that most responsible and exacting position she was eminently successful. Frail in body and at times a great sufferer, she was a giant in character and service. As a teacher she had the highest ideals, was a tireless worker, possessed a mind always open to new ideas, and was full of a warm, human interest in all her pupils. Hundreds of students have profited much from her sympathy and wise understanding.

Service with no thought of self was the outstanding characteristic of her life.

L. L. Cleveland.

"And to every man there openeth
A high Way, and a Low.
And every man decideth
The Way his soul shall go."

John Oxenham.

MISS JENNIE S. SPRING

One of the faces which early became familiar to the class of 1924 was that of Miss Spring, head of the Latin department and dean of senior girls. Though her prolonged illness in 1922-23 and her death in July, 1923, deprived the class of much intimacy with her, her strong, attractive personality had already made a deep impression on many of the class. Through her long years in the school she was alert, human, humorous, and effective in her teaching; exalted in her standards of scholarship and of life; widely and deeply influential in the moral development of her pupils; conscientious and devoted in every duty. She was one of the real makers of this school and her death brought irreparable loss.

C. T. DERRY.

"The reason firm, the temperate will
Endurance, foresight, strength, and skill;
A perfect woman, nobly planned,
To warn, to comfort, and command."

WORDSWORTH.

Class Honors

"But deep this truth impressed my mind—
Through all His works abroad,
The heart, benevolent and kind,
The most resembles God."

Class Song

To future years we must begin
With trusting faith to look;
The four short years through which we've been
Are stamped in Life's great book.
May we now strive to make of these,
Through ev'ry loss or gain,
A proof that lessons taught us there
Have not been learned in vain.

A master hand has power to wake
To thrilling symphonies,
The instrument which others make
A tool for jarring keys.
In these few years if we have learned
To make our notes more true,
We shall attain a higher goal
In ev'rything we do.

Elizabeth Gerould.

Class Poem

Adown the paths of yesterday they come,
Silently, one by one, little fleeting scenes
Of days whose work is done, whose course is run;
We have them now, but in our dreams.

The toilsome ways o'er which we slowly trod
In strife against defeat and dread to fail,
The past now hides beneath dear Vict'ry's sod,
And on our gains and losses draws a veil.

And as a welling brook o'erflows its banks,
Too oft, perhaps our joyous mirth did rise
To make the daily task of smaller size,
Inventing capers, frolics, little pranks.

And now we glimpse the teachers' care and toil
To plant the sterling deeds of future years,
On bare and almost seeming barren soil,
A noble work! replete with bravest fears.

As future years their changing ways unfold,
And some depart from beaten paths of yore,
A place within our mem'ry still we'll hold,
Secure for friends we made in twenty-four.

Along the silent paths dreams golden glide,
Into the shadowy dusk of days of yore,
Into the depths of mem'ry; there abide
To enrich the beauty of dim future's store.

But let us to the work that must be done,
And by our deeds win merit for the age.
Who knows that in this class may hide the one
Who'll blaze his name in fame on Hist'ry's page.

Rose McGirr.

CLASS HISTORY

The history of the Class of 1924 is too vast and far-reaching a subject to be set down on the scant space here allotted for it. In its unabridged form it comprises a detailed account of the events of the happiest four (or more) years ever spent by some four hundred students of this school. Since we realize in some measure the enormity of such a work, we shall confine ourselves to stating, with due modesty, the achievements of this class as a whole during its sojourn within "this studious cloister's pale."

We entered, a huge throng some 742 strong. The process of assimilation into the ways of knowledge has reduced this number about 50%. Out of this great number, it was easy to find sufficient talent and ability to run a Get-Together day table profitably, without adopting Jesse James' methods. This was a most noteworthy achievement and endeared us lastingly to all well wishers of the school.

In 1922 we also ran a Get-Together table. Since then there have been no Get-Together days. A possible reason for this is that the notable efforts of other classes on such occasions were obscured by the divinely inspired prowess of our representatives. Our modesty prompts us to say that this is only a matter of conjecture, however.

From the moment of our entrance into these sacred portals, a new zeal was infused into every field of scholastic endeavor. This feeling became especially strong as we entered upon our third year. The Golden Age had come again. Teachers began to beam encouragement. Home lessons were sometimes done. School spirit grew up over night. Some even braved the scathing comments of their well-wishers and sang at weekly assemblies. Athletics became invigorated. The lusty voices of the choir awakened slumbering echoes. The orchestra was incited to dreadful deeds of violence, and the "Chem" class, not to be outdone, made the "clang-clang-clang of the anvils" across the way inaudible in the din.

In the midst of these marvellous times, it behooved us to elect class officers. The following received the first tribute to their greatness at the polls:

President—James Harrington
Vice-President—Katherine Teeven
Secretary—Mary Fitzpatrick
Treasurer—John Morris

Their outstanding achievement, brought about by the aid of the social committee and our many friends, was the Junior Prom, an event long to be remembered by all who attended.

As time pressed on, this wave of intellectual enthusiasm only grew stronger. The Review reached a popularity never before dreamed of. The K. B. and the G. A. A. teemed with the life and beauty which our class deigned to bestow upon them. Even a championship Chess Team came into being! Since it was now time for us to again choose our officers, we went to the polls and duly elected the following:

President—Edmund Casey
Vice-President—Mary Fitzpatrick
Secretary—Joseph Coyne
Treasurer—John Morris

DRAMA COMMITTEE

Elizabeth Gerould, Chairman
Ruth Fennessey
Beatrice MacDonald
Loretta Wetmore
Jean Sanford

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

Ruth Rowe, Chairman
Lilian Craib
Margaret Gerhard
Dorothy Griffith
Rose Berman
Hazel Heckman

The production of "The Romantic Age" at Brattle Hall was our next notable achievement. The fact that the play was repeated a week later at the Copley Theatre speaks volumes for its success.

Another remarkable achievement brought about by the instrumentality of the class through three representatives has shown the world conclusively how to end war. While this announcement may not receive the acclamation of which it is deserving, yet we are confident that it will in time receive due recognition. The occasion for this happening was an essay contest on the subject "War on War", sponsored by the Reverend Mr. Calkins. The prizes $15, $10, $5 were won respectively by Thornton Sykes, Edward Hall, and Eleanor Holmes. The winning essays, besides settling a question which has long puzzled the great minds of the world, also proved to be models of the art of English composition.

In April the Senior Social was held at the Beech Street Bungalow, with such success that it completely obscured the efforts of all former classes.

In June, on the eleventh, we received our diplomas. The reign of the greatest class of modern times is ended. The realm of history lies behind us; what does prophecy hold in store?

SENIOR DRAMA

I approached the little old gray-haired gentleman who sat behind a desk many sizes too large for him. I had heard that he was a great man at research and that he could find the answer to any question put before him, provided the question appealed to him. "Will my question appeal to him?" I continually asked myself. I certainly hoped that it would; indeed, I thought I should be very much disappointed if it did not. However, as he stared at me through his big horn-rimmed spectacles, I wished myself many miles away. He had the kind of eyes that seem to look right through you at some object about ten feet behind you. I gathered up what courage I had left, and spoke.

"Good afternoon, sir."

"Well?"

"I have come to see if you have any records of a Senior Drama presented by the Cambridge High and Latin School during the season of 1923-24. I hope I am not - - -"

He interrupted me, "Drama?"

"Yes sir."

He touched a button on his desk and immediately a clerk entered. Without any hesitation the old fellow said, "Bring me Book No. 42, Part D, from Section 8 on the right."

Then the clerk, without any hesitation on his part, found the mentioned book and gave it to the old man who sat before me.

"Now," said he, "just what was it?"

"The C. H. L. S. Drama of the season 1923-24, sir," I replied.

He turned the pages of the big book, one by one, now and then stopping to muse over some of its written contents. "Here it is," he said at last. "There is quite a lot here about it, my notes seem to be especially full. What would you like to know about it?"

"I should like to have a general summary if you would be so kind as to give me one," I replied timidly.

"Well," began the man, "the first couple of pages in the chapter seem to be about the try-outs. They were held in the Latin Hall, on the eighteenth of December, in the year of our Lord, one thousand, nine hundred and twenty-three. There were a goodly number trying for parts, and it was only after long consideration that the cast was finally picked. As a matter of fact, a special try-out was held two days later, in which only a few participated. The final cast contained nine Seniors."

"What was the name of the play they were going to give?" I questioned.

"Don't be impatient. The play had been selected by an advisory council headed by Miss Lillian R. Hartigan, the teacher of Oral English in the school, who was to be their coach.

"The cast being selected, they began to memorize their parts, and . . . . "

"But I don't know the name of the play yet," I said, somewhat exasperated.

"Oh, the name? Why didn't you say so? The name was 'The Romantic Age' and it was by Mr. A. A. Milne."

Third Row—R. Fennessey B. MacDonald E. Gerould J. Sanford L. Wetmore
Second Row—E. Frost F. Colc H. Richardson A. Serino R. Titus
Front Row—F. Murray W. Beers Miss Hartigan(coach) F. Sullivan B. Rivers

"The first rehearsal was held in the Red Room at the Cambridge Public Library during the Christmas vacation. Things started out to go well, Bobby was made for his part, Mrs. Knowle was fine, and as for Susan, why . . . ."

"But you haven't told me the characters as yet," I put in.

"Don't be impatient," was his answer, "the first rehearsal was, as I have said, very promising. Everybody was interested in it and all. . . ."

"But the names," I shouted, for I now decided that he must be somewhat deaf.

"Oh, the names? Why didn't you say so? The cast was as follows:

Mrs. Knowle	Helen Richardson
Melisande (her daughter)	Frances Sullivan
Jane (her niece)	Fern Murray
Alice	Ruth Titus
Bobby	Burke Rivers
Henry Knowle	Frederick Cole
Gervase Mallory	William Beers
Ern	Evelyn Frost
Gentleman Susan	Antonio Serino

"Rehearsals were held almost every day after school from one forty-five to five-thirty. This was the regular procedure," said he as he skipped a dozen pages, "until we get to the opening night."

"But," said I, in a loud tone, for I wanted him not to fail to hear me this time, "please don't skip so many pages. Tell me about the rehearsals and what happened at them. There must be something of interest on those pages that you have skipped."

"Well," replied he, and I saw that he had heard me, "most of what is on those pages are the directions given to the cast by the coach, which were not carried out by the characters when they presented the play."

I chuckled, but my friend did not hear me. He was busy turning and re-turning those pages.

"On the eighteenth of January I see that the cast had real sandwiches to try to eat, and cold tea which they tried to drink, neither of which they accomplished satisfactorily. A rehearsal was held on Saturday, January twenty-sixth, and also on Sunday, February third, so you see that they worked on the play other days than school days. At the last mentioned rehearsal it was so cold in the building that the cast had to wear their coats.

"During the week preceding the presentation, they worked harder than ever. The last rehearsal was held on Thursday, February seventh, and it lasted until eleven o'clock that night.

"Then, on Friday night, February eighth, the first performance was given. Just as a small boy rises to the occasion when his fami y have company, for fear lest he be whipped, after the company has gone, for not being good; so did the cast, who had been previously warned by their coach, rise to the occasion on that Friday night. It was a great success. On the following night it went equally well, if not better, and at the end, amid loud applause, Miss Hartigan was dragged forth on the stage by the people who had worked under her during the past months.

"These two performances over, they now worked for one to be given Friday in the Copley Theater in Boston, under the auspices of the Students' Repertory Club of New England. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, they worked. Friday came and they presented their play, this time even better than before. Then Friday had gone, and," said he, as he closed the big book, "the Senior Drama of 1924 was history."

PROPHECY

"Great heavens, what can I do?"

My mind was being torn between doubt and uncertainty. I had been given a thing to do about which I had no ideas and of which I felt myself entirely incapable. I was to write the Prophecy for the Class of 1924. For hours I had paced the floor like a caged catamount, utterly oblivious to time or surroundings, knowing only that I had no inspiration.

Suddenly it dawned on me to write to the Sphinx who is deemed to have great wisdom and oracular powers. I wrote to this gentleman explaining my difficulties, and one night about a week later I was greatly surprised to hear this coming over my radio:

"Station S. P. N. X., Gizeh, Egypt.

"Our program this evening will be a Class Prophecy for the Class of 1924 of the Cambridge High and Latin School, Cambridge, Massachusetts, U. S. A., by the Sphinx.

Stand by for three minutes, please."

Although my astonishment was unparalleled in the history of mankind, it was not too great to prevent my getting together paper and pencils to take down the speech that followed.

After the announcer's brief re-introduction it began to come in clear, though rather dreamy tones:

"I now hold before me a crystal ball which has been in my family for many generations; I shall tell you all that I see therein.

"I seem to be in a huge auditorium; it looks like a new theatre. In fact, from the bustle and confusion I should say it was the opening night for both theatre and play. I see a portly figure who by his air of importance looks familiar. Sure enough, it is my old friend "Eddie" Casey, who, I am told, is the manager of this new theatre. There are several famous actors and actresses of both stage and screen in the audience. There is Frances Sullivan, widely heralded as the 'Shining Satellite of the Silver Sheet', whose films I have often seen at the Gizeh Palace, with her is her leading man 'Heart-Breaking Billy' Beers. The leaders of a new set of intelligentsia, Jessie Wilkins and Rose McGirr whose pictures I see frequently in the papers, are also easily picked out in the audience. By George! they've got with them Barbara Southgate who has been prominent in the 'Superiority of Woman' campaign.

"I don't see anyone else in the assembly that I know. I'll look over the program.

MORRIS THEATRES, INC.

Take Great Pleasure in Opening Their New

METROPOLITAN CLASSIC THEATRE

"My attention is aroused by an elbow in my ribs and a whispered murmur in my ear, 'That's the owner himself up back there, the great John Morris'. I look around, and there is a corpulent figure in evening clothes gazing at the rapidly increasing audience with an expansive smirk on his face and an incessant chafing of his hands. Not very much interested in this figure of capital, I turn back to my program—

with the presentation of

the masterpiece of that mistress of novelists, Edythe MacLean, as a play so full of thought and beauty that it has been sought after unsuccessfully by three other theatre corporations.

"Before I have time to finish this terrific piece of literature, the orchestra begins to play and all attempts at concentration are frustrated. I think the leader must have been borrowed for the occasion from Symphony. His name is on the program as Stanley Ganz. I am occupying myself with watching his rythmic motions till the curtain goes up.

"The only reasons for remaining awake through this almost insufferable first act are the incomparable antics of a small red-headed boy around a dark, distinguished actor dressed as a very stylish gentleman. These two are truly splendid character actors in every sense of the word, although obviously having minor parts. I must find out who they are.

"The house is being shaken with applause in welcome of the entrance of the leading lady, Fern Murray. She and the other two that I have already mentioned are the saviours of the act.

"The curtain has fallen on the first act, and with a sigh of relief I seek refuge in my program. The 'boy' in the play is listed in the cast as Evelyn Frost. Evidently he is a lady. The dark gentleman's name belies his heavy English accent. He is down as Antonio Serino; from its sound, Italian.

"My acquaintance with the elbow is volunteering me the information that the two men coming down the aisle are Harvey Titus, one of the most famous civil engineers in the world, and Edward Spike, the head of a large electrical engineering establishment up-state.

"The second act, although a trifle less inane than its predecessor, is passing slowly and uninterestingly. The acting is good as a whole, but it is evident a fine story was butchered in turning it into a play.

"As the curtain drops, the elbow having been encouraged, again finds its way to my ribs. This is a choice bit of scandal. Do I see that party down there of a lady and two gentlemen? Well, the lady is the internationally known pacifist writer, Eleanor Holmes; on her left is one of her most brilliant collaborators, Edward Hall; on her right is her recently divorced husband, the famous swimming champion, King Hooker. In a solitary grandeur of gloom across the aisle, sits Thornton Sikes, editor of the magazine for which Miss Holmes writes.

"There also, is Mary Fitzpatrick, the first woman nominee for the Presidency; Avis Clark, holder of a chair in a well-known woman's college; Alexander Drewicz, head cartoonist for a famous daily.

"Thanks be to heaven that the last act is short and to the point, at least. It is over now, and I'm sure the audience is very grateful.

"In the crowd outside, I see the faces pointed out to me to-night and many that I do not know; however, they are all happy, comfortable, and satisfied. This is truly a great comfort to me and to all those who concern themselves with the good of mankind.

"The picture is fading now, and I fear I must conclude my prophecy at least for this evening.

"Good-night.

"Station S. P. N. X., Gizeh, Egypt signing off at 12.15 A. M. Egyptian time."

CLASS WILL

Know all men by these presents, that we, the Class of 1924 of the Cambridge High and Latin School, in the County of Middlesex, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being of sound mind and memory, do hereby make, publish, and declare this our last will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills at any time made by us.

We do appoint our successors, the Class of '25, executors of this our last will, and direct that they be exempted from giving surety on official bond as such executor, directing them to pay our just debts and funeral expenses.

First:—We give, devise, and bequeath to succeeding generations, a list of many unoffending words which have been frightfully misused by us.

Second:—We give, devise, and bequeath our names which we have written with great care on all our text-books. May they remain ingrained upon the memory of posterity; and may we never be called to account for their existence.

Third:—We give, devise, and bequeath to the admiring world the many epigrammatic sayings which we proudly inscribed on the sides of our blocks, a dictionary of which, we suggest, should be compiled by any person who thinks himself capable of the undertaking.

Fourth:—We give, devise, and bequeath to our successors the record of a marvellously successful Senior Drama which should serve as an incentive toward similar successes by the seniors to come.

Fifth:—We give, devise, and bequeath to Coach MacDonald some dozen football players once of '24 Class renown, who should serve as a nucleus for a winning team next fall.

Sixth:—We give, devise, and relegate to the waste basket the slips indicating our propensity for talking in the corridors.

Seventh:—We also give, devise, and consign to the musty pages of the past the custom of "hooking" periods which actuated us to step out for luncheon either before or after recess.

Eighth:—We give, devise, and bequeath to succeeding classes our remarkable affection for the seventh period—that bulwark of all erudition and that guide of our pilgrimage into the ways of knowledge.

Ninth:—We give, devise, and bequeath to the school all the bright spots of the athletics of the past two years which are, of course, directly traceable to the part taken by our class. (For all spots on our athletic record not so bright we hold the Freshmen responsible.)

Tenth:—We give, devise, and bequeath to the ages our forbearance so marked in times of trouble which is especially manifest at the distribution of report cards.

Eleventh:—We give, devise, and bequeath our excuses for having been late, which, though somewhat hackneyed, are occasionally productive of the desired effect.

Twelfth:—We give, devise, and bequeath the shining bits of repartee which we were wont to make use of, when forced into a corner by the subtle questions of certain teachers.

Thirteenth:—We give, devise, and bequeath traditional tales of masterly pieces of broken field running by us through crowded lunch rooms.

Fourteenth:—We give, devise, and bequeath to those capable of understanding it an intricate code of mathematical science which enables one to tell the correct time from any clock in the school. (The success of the method is not guaranteed in case of the clock's being right.)

Fifteenth:—All the rest of our estate, real, personal and imaginary, wheresoever the same may be situated, we give, devise and bequeath to the faculty of the Cambridge High and Latin School, to them, their heirs and assigns forever.

In witness whereof, we hereunto set our hands and seal this twentieth day of May, A. D. 1924.

(Signed) The Class of 1924.

The Cross Country Team this year was hard hit by the loss of Murphy, one of the best "hill and dalers" in the state. Nevertheless, it was successful in its meets. The squad elected Fred Meuse as Captain, after Murphy had resigned to play football.

The success of all our cross country teams for the past three years is due to the coaching and energy of Mr. Joseph Smith, Director of Athletics and Physical Training, who is coaching them gratuitously.

TRACK

Candidates for the Track Team were called out December, 1923. This School and Rindge received permission to use the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Track in Cambridge. About thirty candidates reported, and it seemed that High and Latin School had an opportunity to distinguish itself this year in Track. Shortly afterwards our hopes were blasted because we were informed that we could not use the "Tech" Track on account of crowded conditions and lack of hot water in the shower baths.

We then attempted to procure other training quarters, but were unsuccessful. For this reason we abandoned Indoor Track.

Outdoor Track was called out about April first. The numbers were small but are increasing from day to day. Among those who have reported are: Murphy, a miler and a half-miler; Meuse, Maloney, Trainor, and Wood, out for the mile; King for the quarter; Bunker for the dashes, and Parker for the dashes and shot-put.

Practice is held every afternoon at Russell Field. Track is in a wretched state in this school for two reasons. First, there is a lack of candidates for the team which is due to lack of school spirit; second, we have no gymnasium for indoor practice.

However, we hope that within a year, the plot of land in front of Rindge near the Library, will be in shape for Track. Also the plot on Cambridge Street besides Felton Hall may be rolled this year.

Track is a sport in which any boy can participate. It is the fundamental work for football, baseball, and all other sports.

His athletic record is brilliant; he was on the football team in '21, '22, '23, '24; was on the baseball team in '23 and '24, and manager in '24; and was acting manager of hockey in '24.

REVIEW STAFF

Back Row — Samuel Winthrop Arnold Borden A. Drewicz R. Swezey W. Greene R. Lamson O. Fields
Front Row — E. Frost M. Andrews Miss M. C. Hardy (Faculty Advisor) T. Gilbert

Again as in previous years Fortune has smiled upon the Reviewers and assisted them in their task of compiling and publishing at regular intervals their unique and interesting magazine.

The Review has this year taken several strides toward its goal of perfection. A most attractive cover design, a product of our art department, met with the unanimous approval of our appreciative patrons. The editorial and literary departments have both maintained exceptionally high standards throughout the year, and the business and financial side of the publication was never more efficiently managed.

Toward Miss Hardy, our faculty advisor, we cannot but feel grateful for her assistance and cooperation in making The Review the success it has been; the staff appreciates her valuable suggestions and conscientious application toward this end.

The Review has for some time been one of the important institutions of High and Latin School. The hard work and devotion of time and energy of previous staffs have made it what it is; a similar effort on the part of future editors alone will enable The Review to continue to flourish and develope.

As we who are graduating pass on, we leave behind us work unfinished, tasks, the completion of which the brevity of our era has prevented. We beseech those who are preparing to take up our duties to carry on with increased interest and enthusiasm those projects the earnest devotion and endeavor of others have initiated and advanced. Carry on! Good luck!

K. B. CLUB

Second Row—I. Garner D. Roys G. Reardon N. Dabney J. Sanford B. MacDonald M. Andrews
First Row—E. MacSwain Miss Thurston E. Gerould Miss Hartigan D. Boland

The activities of the K. B. Club have been various during a year full of opportunities to be of service in the school life. The girls have helped where they could, and have combined their pleasures with their work. The Club gave three Thanksgiving dinners; it solicited and sold candy for the Senior Drama; it has supported the Student's Repertory Theatre Association; it has shown an interest in debating. Then, too, it has hiked and it has danced! The K. B.-ites will always keep as one of the most pleasant remembrances of their Senior year the dance in Newton at the home of a friend of the Club. Th initiation meetings will probably be remembered more poignantly by the pledges, but the initiators had their fun, too. To Miss Hartigan and Miss Thurston, our faculty advisors, we owe every success. They are our backbone and dearest friends without whom we could not hold together.

The officers of the club are:

President—Elizabeth Gerould
Secretary—Constance Rouillion
Treasurer—Jean Sanford

FRENCH CLUB

J. Rockwood R. Murize E. Gerould
F. Lorenzen

The French Club was organized in December as a Club for social purposes as well as a society to help train the French students in the understanding and speaking of French. The success of the club must be attributed to the kind co-operation of the faculty and to the capab'e officers of the Club. French only may be spoken at the Club meetings, and a rule has been established that those who attempt to use the English language shall not be allowed to partake of refreshments. However, the appetites of the club members were such, that no penalty was inflicted.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

A. GUERTIN H. ANDERSON A. BRESNAN

MISS M. A. HARRINGTON

A Home Economics Club was organized this year under direction of Miss Mabel Harrington.

The purpose of the club is to arouse a greater interest in the home and to supplement the work of the class-room.

Any girl electing cooking is eligible for membership, but the officers are chosen from the two upper classes.

At the first meeting the following officers were elected: President, Helen Anderson; Secretary, Alice Guertin; Treasurer, Anna Bresnan.

The work of the year includes trips to manufacturing plants, markets, the Modern Priscilla Plant, and talks given by outside speakers on subjects of interest to the club.

DEBATING

Debating started its successful season with three Freshman-Sophomore debates. Two interscholastic debates were held on the World Court question and were both won by C. H. L. S. On the negative of the resolution the following team, Walter H. McLaughlin, Roy Lamson, Jr., and Louis Barron, defeated Somerville, in the Latin School Hall. The same team with the exception of Barron, whose place was taken by Federick Lorenzen, defeated Rindge by a unanimous decision on the affirmative of the same question. The Durrell Debate, held in the Latin School Hall on the subject of immigration restriction, was the intervening feature of the year. The affirmative team, Wilfred Nightingale, Theodore Walcott, and Walter McLaughlin defeated the negative composed of Roy Lamson, Jr., Frederick Lorenzen, and Robert Swezey.

The debating council wishes to extend its most hearty thanks to Miss Hartigan and Mr. Donahue who gladly gave their able assistance and untiring efforts to the furtherance of debating in the school, and to other members of the faculty who co-operated with them in this work.

CHESS CLUB

Back Row—Lally Long Meere Andelman
Front Row—Mr. Sullivan (Coach) Stokes Herdanez

Latin started her Chess Team with four regulars: Hernandez, Isenstein, Lally and Meere; while Mildred Stokes was Secretary. Of the substitutes, three were chosen for the team: Andelman, Fisher, and Long. Long dropped from the team but returned in time to defeat Rindge, May 9. The schedule was divided in two halves.

G. A. A.

Back Row—B. Adams B. Southgate Miss Brown J. Wilkins G. Sullivan
Front Row—M. Perkins E. Gerould F. Sullivan

The G. A. A. has completed another successful year under the guidance of Miss Brown, our faculty advisor, and the group of officers above.

Our Freshman Party, with its funny costumes, began the year. The Freshmen were well initiated before the party, so that they, particularly, enjoyed the entertainment.

At Thanksgiving we sent dinners, so generously contributed by the girls, to several needy families.

At Christmas, we laughed and almost cried over the play of Dickens' "Scrooge". The Freshmen were surprised to see Santa Claus appear in person with a sack of lollypops.

Can we ever forget the exciting basketball games from which the Freshmen emerged triumphant and throughout which the Sophomores earned great credit, or the exciting baseball games?

The Swimming Meet and Tennis Tournament were events of importance.

Our track, a new sport this year, was brought to a successful close at a meet on May 28. The Monograms and Numerals for which we all worked so eagerly were awarded then.

Our annual picnic and the installation of new officers finished our activities for the year.

HONOR BASKETBALL TEAM

Third Row—G. Herlihy L. Campbell L. Langley E. Borjeson T. Mahoney
Second Row—J. Wilkins E. Gerould R. Davis
First Row—R. Troiano E. Jones G. Sullivan

For the first time since 1916, the girls have had a basketball team chosen from all the girls in the school. Another innovation in the basketball season was the fact that nine girls were picked instead of six, as in past years. There was some doubt as to how this change would work out, but it succeeded beyond all expectations.

The Honor Team showed its early proficiency in the game by challenging and defeating a team of former C. H. L. S. girls. The game was played on the night of the Annual Gymnasium Exhibition and was rousingly supported by the boys and girls who took part in the exhibition. and by the audience, composed of parents and friends. Enough cannot be said of the wonderful spirit of the Alumnae Team, especially since they had never before played with nine on a team. The score was 27-18

It is to be hoped that the school team which had its renaissance this year will continue and wax stronger in future years, and do more for the honor of the school.

THE MUSIC DEPARTMENT

Realizing that some musical knowledge is necessary to enjoy good music, the Cambridge High and Latin School, under the direction of Mr. Whoriskey, offers a course in appreciation for those who perhaps play no instrument, but who are musically inclined. In this class the reading of music and the explanation of form are combined, and provide the student with a foundation for more advanced studies. Various sorts of compositions are played and analyzed so that all may understand.

The Choir is a mixed chorus, consisting of those who prove themselves worthy of membership. Part songs, sacred and secular, are sung; and occasionally an operetta is presented at the end of the school year. Thus, students who sing are well trained to take their places in choirs and choruses after they have finished school.

MR. WHORISKEY

The Glee Club has practically the same purpose as the choir, its membership, of course, being restricted to boys alone. Once a year this organization holds a contest with Rindge.

The Harmony Class is for advanced students only. Here the construction of chords and associate details are studied, and opportunity is given for writing original pieces.

The Orchestra acts as a stimulus for instrument players. They find places to make use of what they have learned and also, like the Choir and Glee Club members, obtain valuable experience for playing in other musical organizations. The Orchestra appears several times during the year at school activities.

The Mandolin Club which has existed for some time was a little late in assembling this year. However, thirteen presented themselves for membership and elected Michael Portanova, President; Beatrice MacDonald, Vice-President; Jack Leahy, Leader; Constance Roullion, Treasurer; and Robert Swezey, Publicity Manager.

Good, up-to-date music was obtained from time to time, and the club practiced it at their weekly meetings on Thursdays during the seventh period.

With Mr. Whoriskey's assistance and with the co-operation of the members, the club made great progress.

PRIZE SPEAKING

On Wednesday evening, May 14, in the presence of an enthusiastic audience of admiring friends, ten competitors strove for the Liberty Medal, the coveted speaking prize established as a patriotic memorial of the Great War. Five boys and an equal number of girls entered for dual honors. The program was exceedingly well balanced with every possible kind of selection from the pathetic to the humorous, from the dramatic to the forensic. The girls alternated with the boys in the order of speaking.

Professor N. C. Maynard of Tufts College was chairman of the judges, and, in announcing his decision, he declared that the task of the judges was extremely difficult, as every speaker was excellent. Together with his colleagues, Mrs. Margaret S. Hurley and Professor Joseph E. Connor of Emerson College, he awarded first honors to Bernadette Carney and Joseph Curtin, who received medals, and to Dorothy Gray, Florence Ricker, Walter H. McLaughlin and John Kelley, who received Honorable Mention. Mrs. Edmund A. Whitman of the School Committee presented the Liberty Medals to the winners and Cicero medals, "for excellence in interscholastic debate", to Walter H. McLaughlin, Frederick Lorenzen, and Roy Lamson, Jr.

Mr. Cleveland fittingly expressed the gratitude of those present when he thanked Miss Hartigan for her zealous efforts in training the speakers, and for her customary ability in offering such an evening of pleasure.

Mr. John B. Whoriskey and the orchestra, as well as the violin soloist, Joseph Mangano, the vocal soloist, Donald Howard, deserve special mention for their assistance.

FACULTY

Mr. Cleveland, besides the immense amount of work which he has to do as principal of C. H. L. S., finds time not only to conduct the class assemblies but to give many interesting talks, in which a great deal of wise counsel is injected into his pupils' minds without their quite knowing how it is done. In his quiet way, at the cost of much time and effort, he has given his pupils the pleasure of hearing many fine speakers, in addition to the other pleasures he has made possible. The Class of 1924 most gratefully and heartily thank him for all he has done.

Mr. Bramhall is not only the Senior and Junior master, but is head of the Mathematics Department. In spite of the fact that this subject is distasteful and irksome, he, by reason of his skillful teaching plus his never failing enthusiasm, makes much of the distastefulness disappear. As a master his wise counsel has solved many a problem; so that more than a few upper classmen have felt after a conference with him that life is really not so difficult after all, and that a hearty laugh and a friendly handshake have a marvellous power to encourage a distracted student.

Mr. Bliss, who is the master of the Sophomore class, also conducts most interesting classes in History and Civics. Despite the work of teaching and being Sophomore master, he is always ready to lend a helping hand, and to encourage some Sophomore when it seems that everything is going wrong. As to his skillful teaching and the way in which he handles the subjects of History and Civics, just ask any one of his pupils!

Mr. Downey, as master of the Freshmen, certainly has caused a change in their behavior. His office is always besieged by eager applicants for one thing and another; and for all who come to him he has the same calm and just view of the case, and his judgment and decisions are never hastily formed. His classes in science are always most interesting.

Miss Hartigan, besides conducting her classes in elocution, devotes her time and energy to almost every school activity. Prize Speaking, Debating, Drama, and Year Book are among her activities. It is because of her that the Senior Drama is an event looked forward to each year by graduates and undergraduates alike. From five to six weeks are devoted to preparation for the Drama. The Year Book is under her charge and she spends much time and thought plus a large amount of work to make it a true and interesting chronicle of Class History.

Miss Hardy gives her pupils a thorough training in Latin, which none of us fully appreciates until College Board Exams draw near, and then we realize that we owe much of our knowledge of grammar rules to her thorough drill. Her German classes have a charm all their own, for the postcards she shows portraying life in Germany, the interesting stories she selects for her pupils to read, and the dialogues during the last part of the year, all combine to make her classes full of charm. Whatever success the Review attains, is due in a large manner to her wisdom and tact, for not an issue goes out which she has not supervised.

Miss Flanders by her skillful instruction in our mother tongue dispels much of the terror inspired by the College Board Examinations. Her concise interpretations of the many puzzling passages in "Macbeth" cause many of us to feel a lively interest in matters of literature hitherto neglected. Her classes have been most interesting and will be remembered with pleasure.

Miss Schroeder has that happy faculty of managing her pupils so that she has at all times their hearty co-operation. To many of us this year "74" has been a "Home Room" in the highest sense of the word, for she has always been interested in our doings; and, because of that friendly atmosphere, her room has a charm all its own.

Miss Ball, whose willingness to help in any crisis and whose cheerful and quick assent to any who ask her aid in any matter, has caused many a distracted upper classman to remember her with gratitude.

Mr. Whoriskey, besides conducting his classes in chorus and orchestra, has, at the cost of much time and effort, given our class a great deal of pleasure by the musical programs he has arranged for the senior assemblies each week. The Class of '24 has appreciated this very much and thanks Mr. Whoriskey most heartily.

Mr. Jacobs is a veritable walking encyclopedia on American History and Civil Government, and it is due only to his thorough instruction in the whirlpool of dates and facts that enough of it stays in our heads long enough to pass the College Board Exams.

Miss McElroy has always been willing to devote her time and effort to all who ask it. Her classes in English are among the most interesting there are, and she always has a fund of information which she is always ready to impart, no matter what the subject may be. During Drama rehearsals she cheerfully gave her time and effort to help make it a success. The Class of '24 is deeply grateful to her.

Miss Sampson not only conducts most interesting classes but is the wise counsellor and good friend of all those about to take College and Normal School examinations. She takes upon herself every year the task of regulating our studies to meet the college or normal school requirements. She knows the amount of work each college wants, and as soon as a new requirement is added, she notifies those interested and rearranges their programs. The Class of '24 wishes to express its gratitude to her.

Miss MacIntyre teaches French and Spanish with equal ease and thoroughness. How she is able apparently to forget the existence of Spanish when she is teaching French, and vice versa, has always been a source of wonder to her pupils. Her vigorous and enthusiastic personality combine to make her classes pleasurable as well as profiable.

Mr. Derry conducts his Latin classes in such a way that the ancient language suddenly seems not only interesting but suddenly worth while. In spite of the large amount of work which he has to do as head of the Latin department, he is always ready to give illustrated lectures for the enjoyment of his pupils. He makes out the exams for the Hopkins Prize, has charge of the Classical Library, and aids anyone over the rough road to College.

Miss Mason makes her shorthand classes most interesting by giving current events and articles to her pupils when she dictates. Thus she combines knowledge of what the world is doing to-day with the knowledge of shorthand. Her classes will long be remembered.

Miss Hogan not only conducts English classes, but is always willing to give pleasure to the pupils by her excellent and amusing readings.

Miss Sharkey not only covers the work required in her subject but brings a wealth of outside information into the class room. She is always ready to give her aid to any school activity.

Miss Morton gives a most interesting art course, as witness the many excellent pieces of work which are displayed in the third floor annex. Her friendliness and comradeship have been a source of much pleasure to her pupils.

Mr. Donahue, to whose untiring energy the debating team owes a large part of its success, is a skillful teacher as well. His English classes are noted for their liveliness. He is always willing to lend a hand in any activity, and will always be remembered for his comradeship and his cheerful assistance in many times of need.

Miss Slade makes that subject known as office practice, full of interest. She has always been willing to type special notices for the Review and other class activities. Many a time an important notice would have failed to be put before the school had it not been for her aid.

Miss Dennett, to whose never failing aid in typing, much of the work of this book is due, has certainly helped by giving her time and work.

We regret exceedingly that lack of space prohibits mentioning all our many good friends among the faculty. It is not from lack of appreciation that these good friends are not mentioned by name, and to all of them the Class of '24 is deeply indebted.

Thank You

The Year Book Board deems it fitting and proper to take the opportunity of thanking the non-members of the staff. Especially do we thank both the Year Book Collectors whose persevering efforts brought in more subscriptions than in any previous year, and the Class Dues Collectors who worked faithfully on an unappreciated task.

The efforts of the typewriting department helped the Board a great deal. Miss Dennett and Miss Slade have looked after the work in this department. Eva Gorberg has been the chief typist for the Year Book. The time and efforts of many of the teachers in behalf of this publication deserve our hearty thanks. The helpful co-operation of the class in subscribing to such a noteworthy extent has not passed unnoticed.

The masters and other teachers who helped us greatly are:

Miss Hartigan, who has done a great deal in advising and supervising the work of the staff.

Miss Morton, who has diligently supervised the art work of our Book.

LEADING LIGHTS

Since it is understood that we are the noblest class that ever trod the well-worn boards of the third floor, we have, naturally, a great many "leading lights", in scholarship, politics, and sociability, as Mr. Derry calls it. Our respected president, Mr. Casey, is the bright light in politics. He is a pleasant fellow, always ready to meet others more than half-way, and always ready to listen to what they have to say. That last tells a good deal, because it has been noticed that good listeners always come out on top. Two shining examples which prove that rule are Casey and Calvin Coolidge. Both are, you notice, presidents.

Still, it isn't always those who listen and act that get there. Sometimes those who are so busy doing things that they haven't time to listen, get there too, strange as it may seem. Take John Morris. He's treasurer, Year Booker, athlete, and one of the numerous aides to Miss Hartigan. With all those jobs, you'd hardly expect him to study, too, would you now? Still he does, and even finds time occasionally to deliver a charming grin.

Speaking of grins, Fred Cole has a wonder, and in all charity we warn you to beware. Fred is cautious, and you may be sure that when he grins he wants you to do something for him. You see, he's clever. He does a lot of work himself, oils the wheels of generosity in others, and suggests that they write up this or that. Thus he serves the Year Book doubly well.

The name Year Book reminds us of the perspiring Chief Editor. Perspiring is used there to indicate the amount of work done by that young man; and, by the way, his work in the Senior Drama was worth more than passing notice.

Ignorance is said to be bliss; but believe us, ignorance on matters athletic, when writing on bright lights of a class, is not bliss. For all we know, the quiet boy in French class, who seems rather dumb, may be the big football hero. Well, just to insure against all accidents, we refer you to the pages on athletics. There you will find all leaders of sport praised with great gusto. The captain of the crew and one of the members of the swimming team happen to be otherwise conspicuous. These are Stanley Ganz and King Hooker. Stanley plays a trombone and a flivver, and King plays with the girls.

Artistically speaking, Tessie Gilbert, Raymond Mosher, and Alexander Drewicz are the leaders. There may be a great many more artists in our midst, but these three head the procession anyway.

Art reminds us of literature, and that again of scholarship. Elizabeth Gerould leads the class with an average of above ninety per cent in her studies. Now don't form a mental picture of this studious scholar as a grind. Not at all! She plays basketball, helped to run the Senior Drama, runs the G. A. A. (not despotically), is president of K. B., dances, talks, and even finds a minute or two to waste.

Perhaps you've heard the saying, "History repeats itself?" Well, just as Europe had a reformation, so has the Class of 1924 at C. H. L. S. That isn't quite true. We would have had one if we had listened to Fred Lorenzen. He's a born reformer and also a hot debater. Walter McLaughlin, our leading debater, is surely planned for an orator. When the Board wanted the Year Book supported, they got Walter to speak, for he was the only one that could draw money with golden words.

Beatrice McDonald and Connie Rouillon are born social leaders. They hold their receptions in Room 78 at 11.45 A. M. In fact, they set the style so prevalent in our cities of receiving in the morning.

Another leading light is Eleanor Holmes, whose brilliant outbursts of wit and humor fairly convulse us. She's a good sport too, and a good worker when she has a car! Still another shining light is Frances Sullivan, an officer of the G. A. A. and a member of the Year Book Staff. Her sunny smile and cheery words are good things at all times. She has worked hard and long for the Year Book.

The midnight oil has burned down, and it is time to cease. An awful thought strikes us. It is this: in all probability there are a great many more lights that we haven't mentioned. For weeks after this has been printed, the name and deeds of some famous classmate will occur to us in the stilly night. Well, for the sake of our future sleep, we now proclaim that the "others" are charming, diligent, high spirited leaders.

Since, if all were named, there wou'dn't be any rank and file left, perhaps it is just as well; for what would future classes do if they had an unadulterated class of leading lights to live up to? They'll have a hard enough time trying to come somewhere near our brilliant record, as it is. All they'll be able to say is, "Conceited set, they were!" Quite true, quite true. But who can blame us?

SOCIAL

Once upon a time a wise man made this remark: "It is hard to strike a happy medium." We have trusting natures; therefore we believe that the gentleman was sincere, and that the reason he did not know that a happy medium is easy to strike was the fact that he was unacquainted with the Class of '24 of the Cambridge High and Latin School. Our noble class has been and is noted for the ease with which it strikes happy mediums in all activities.

Take for example its socials: Anyone who has attended our dances will cheerfully attest to the fact that the exact note of dignity combined with informality has been attained. Moreover, they have been neither too many nor too few. We have had three dances of our own. We have attended three dances given by two former classes and some by the various clubs. We will, no doubt, attend two more dances—not our own—which are scheduled for the late spring.

But to get down to the details, we began our dancing career with our Junior Prom. It was held on May 3, 1923 at Riverbank Court. Mr. and Mrs. Quinn headed a long list of notable patrons and patronesses. To quote what is supposed to be the typical country newspaper, "A good time was had by all." On April 29, 1924, we had a Senior Social at the Beech Street Bungalow . The arrangements were in the hands of a most capable committee, with Ruth Rowe as chairman. The Senior Reception was held on June 13 at the Walker Memorial Hall.

In addition to its own dances, '24 attended in great numbers the Reunion Dances of '23 and '22. These were held at the Beech Street Bungalow, the former on December 27, and the latter on February 1. Those who were at the '23 festivities were overjoyed to see again the teacher whom we had the misfortune to lose our last year, Miss Ricker. Her fellow patronesses, Miss Hartigan and Miss McElroy, were no less popular even though we do see them every day. Mr. and Mrs. Bramhall headed the extraordinarily long receiving line at the '22 dance. The members of that class would have had the entire faculty, if they could have managed it, so anxious were they to have an evening with their old teachers. In parting with the Reunion dances, it would be well to say that they proved conclusively how successful such dances are. However there is a geometric mis-statement: "If the second of two quantities is greater than the first, the third will be greater than both." Just wait for the '24 reunion!

We must not forget the G. A. A. Boy Dance and the K. B. house dance. The G. A. A. meeting place for the tripping of the light fantastic was the gymnasium. It was decorated entirely in red. Evidently the decorators had been reading Dante's "Inferno". But the dance was enjoyed as much as if it were held in the opposite region. Miss Brown, Miss Willoughby, Miss Townsend, and Mr. Derry were the chaperons. The K. B. dance was held at the house of Mrs. Burnham in Newton. From all reports it was one of the snappiest and most enjoyable dances.

The space allotted for the description of the Socials is almost entirely used up. If it were not, we could continue to praise ourselves for our splendid dances at great length. With one voice, however, we will say, "Hooray for our Socials and 1924!"

JOKES
Neoic Gilbert 1924.

A. Hick: My cow's grown.
B. Hick: Mine moo.

Dressed in her father's trousers
A silly maid one day,
Went and eloped with a fellow;
What will the papers say?

Read then the startling headline
(Such are the whims of chance)
That sprang next day from the presses,
"FLEES IN PAPA'S PANTS."

He—I can't see through you at all.
She—I should hope not!

"How was Dobb's car smashed?"
"It seems he was going down Main Street and called out, 'Hey, Smith! Want a ride?'"

The Norse handmaiden said to her mistress, "Ay vent to das movie last night". The lady of the house inquired: "Scaramouche?" and the girl said—this is a scream: "No, not ver' mooch."

"By the way, Frank, whenever I see you at the Splendid, you are always feeding some girl. What's the idea?"
"That's right in my line of work."
"What's that?"
"Accounting."
"What's the connection?"
"Practice in filling out forms."

Bobby: Daddy, look! There's an aeroplane.
Absorbed Daddy: Yes, dear—don't touch it.

Unlucky Motorist (Having killed the lady's puppy) "Madame, I will replace the dog."
Indignant Owner: "Sir, you flatter yourself!"

A pair of sisters had one set of false teeth. One of them had gone out to a tea, and on her return handed over the teeth to her sister. "Um," said she, "Macaroons."

Mr. Derry—"Is that a free translation of Virgil?"
Hall—"No, it cost me fifty cents."

LATIN

All the people died who wrote it.
All the people died who spoke it.
All the people die who learn it.
Blessed Death! They surely earn it.

Little drops of wisdom,
Printed on the desks,
Make some of our pupils,
Smarter than the rest.

"Hey, Holmesie, lend me your pencil."
"I will not; that's the way I got it."

Bob Swezey: "Don't you know you should salute a man of rank?"
Fresh Soph: "How was I to know you was rank?"

A Father's Lament.

"So she took my fifty thousands dollars and went to college."

Personal Efficiency.

Wear socks that can be put on from either end and save time.

Bee: "Has he blue blood?"
Connie: "I don't know, but he wears a blue shirt."

Mr. Donohue: "Somebody give me a sentence."
Student: "Quick! Call the judge."

King: "Ouch, I just bumped my crazy bone."
Elly: "Well, comb your hair right and the bump won't show."

Apple Morris: "I'll loan you five dollars if I can name my own security."
Broke: "Go ahead."
Apple: A chain, padlock, handcuffs, and a watch dog.

Officer: "Hey, don't you know this is a one way street?"
Ted Nolan: "Well, officer, I'm only going one way, ain't I."

"Mr. Jacobs has been teaching History here a long time, hasn't he?"
"I should say he has. Why, when he began he lectured on Current Events; now he is teaching Mediaeval History."

Miss Flanders: "Your theme should be written so that the most ignorant may understand it."
Carey: "What part of it don't you understand?"

Mr. Bramhall: "Now, you see that we get x equals o."
Miller: "Gosh, all that work for nothing."

Miss Flanders: "Tomorrow we take the life of Milton. Come prepared."

Mr. Jacobs: "What are the three great races?"
Hall: "The mile, half mile, and relay."

Mr. Bramhall: (To student carving initials on desk cover). "Cutting up again, eh?"

Sam: So you're the circulation manager of the team? What do you do?
Bo: Why, I give the rub downs.

Elly Holms: "Oh, yes, I want some borax."
Grocer: "Twenty Mule Team?"
Elly: "Why, Mother didn't say what horsepower."

Offspring—"Yes, dad, I'm a big gun at school."
Wise Father—"Well, then, why don't I hear better reports?"

"The ladies are much better looking than the men."
"Naturally."
"No, artificially."

EPILOGUE

Now that this volume has been read and its last leaf turned, its promise has been fulfilled—that, for a single hour at least, the whole class and the body of its instructors have been seen as one company, presented faithfully in hopes that this will prove a lasting memorial to the Class of 1924.
